The way I read this, in an affirmative and carefully worded formal response to our strategic planning requests, ODP has said that they are:

- . Not going to do any SP WRT distributed DB's and the OSs required to deal with them.
- . Not going to plan on bus comm with users, or agree to anybody else's decision to plan on bus.
- . Not going to set specific availability goals. or address architectural plans within cluster centers
- . Not going to respond to the security issue of mixed development and operational environments.
- . Not going to provide a commercial DBMS to support the new Admin systems, thereby committing them to GIM.
- . Not going to specify what improved IRM techniques are going to be applied.
- . Not going to provide any SPs WRT facilities layout in the new building, e.g., commitment to separate cluster centers.
- . Not going to explain why we need on new Admin systems.
- . Not going to develop an SP for terminals.
- . Not going to support the SP for special S&T facilities.
